The Nature Of An Ancient Maya City: Resources, Interaction, And Power At Blue Creek, Belize (Caribbean Archaeology And Ethnohistory)

Synopsis

This work is a comprehensive study of a unique Maya site offering the full range of undisturbed architectural features. It was a Maya community that became an economic and political center that included some 15,000-20,000 people at its height. Fairly well protected from human destruction, the site offers the full range of city components including monumental ceremonial structures, elite and non-elite residences, ditched agricultural fields, and residential clusters just outside the core. It was intensively investigated at Blue Creek in an integrated study of the dynamic structure and functional inter-relationships among the parts of a single Maya city. Documented in coverage by National Geographic, Archaeology magazine, and a documentary film aired on the Discovery Channel, Blue Creek is recognized as a unique site offering the full range of undisturbed architectural construction to reveal the mosaic that was the ancient city.

Customer Reviews

This book is based on an amazing amount of data collected over 14 years. It is well organized and the author is careful to draw conclusions on what is now known. It presents a view of a Maya city over the millennia. A good read for an archeologist or a layman. Professor Lawrence P. Goodman
